Charitable Contribution Rules

- No deduction is allowed for charitable contributions of clothing or household items unless the item is in good used condition or better. The IRS is authorized to deny a deduction for any contribution of clothing or a household item that has minimal monetary value, such as used socks and used undergarments.
- Cash donations of any amount must have a receipt or record. Bank statements, cancelled check, or written communication from the charity showing the name of the donee organization, the date of the contribution, and the amount of the contribution will qualify for proof.
- IRA distributions: In 2009, a charitable contribution may be made directly from a taxpayer's IRA and will not count as income or as a deductible charitable expense. The taxpayer must be age 70 1/2 or older and can donate up to $100,000. This may be extended.

General Rules

- Only contributions to qualified organizations can be deducted.
- Charitable Standard Mileage Rate is 14 cents per mile.
- Donations of $250 or more to any single charity in one day requires an acknowledgement statement from the charity.

- Having receipts is always recommended.
- Contributions of mutual funds/stocks.

Gifting appreciated securities to a charitable organization is an excellent strategy to reduce taxes.

Example: If you gift securities (that you held for at least one year) with a cost basis of $400 and a current value of $1,000 to a qualified organization, you get to deduct the entire $1,000 and do not need to be taxed on the $600 increase in value.

Vehicles, Boats & Airplanes

Deduction Limits:

The general limits are equal to fair market value of the item at the time of the donation.

What you need to claim the deduction:

The organization will supply you with a statement reporting the donation. The organization will specify if they used it or sold the vehicle or used it and the amount they received from the sale.

According to the IRS, an estimate from an Internet site or appraisal service will not satisfy the requirement for the documentation of the deduction.

Contact your tax advisor for further details or for special circumstances.

The following list is to help you determine the fair market value of any items that you donated to a qualifying organization. The prices listed in parentheses were obtained from Goodwill Industries website and are only intended to be a guide as to the value.
